

John Palmer Snow

July 17, 1944 ~ November 20, 2020

I feel so grateful to have known John Snow and heartbroken at his passing. I remember when my Aunt Connie dated and then married John. She was so taken with him, describing how he was so sharp, handsome, funny, and on and on. I was still single at the time, and she counseled me to hold out for the kind of love she felt for John, which she described as “toe-curling love.” I got to take several international trips with John and Connie, and they were simply the best traveling companions—easy going, fun, interesting, and exceptional conversationalists. John’s impressive knowledge of history and the many books he’d read made him so fun to have around as we visited various historical sites in Europe. His knowledge and perspective added to the experience. He was always a gentleman, always kind, and so loving. He had a quiet strength. It was easy to adopt him into the family because of the way that he treated us. I am grateful to John for his loving kindness to me and my family, for the good memories, and especially for the way that he loved and cared for our dear Aunt Connie. John will be greatly missed.

Yesterday, I learned of John's passing. To Connie....my heart is broken for you. What you have gone through in this life is so unfair. To all of you, I am so very sorry for your loss. Happy memories will come with time, Until then, stay strong and try to enjoy the joys of happy moments you will always keep in your hearts. Much love, Lyle

John & Connie have been great neighbors, we love them! John was a very kind man. One experience that illustrates this kindness was his response to a request to use his drill-press for a few minutes on a project one of our sons and I were working on. He took us out to his workshop in the garage and made sure everything was set up just like we needed. We took care of our little project while he shared fond memories of working on a project with his own son. When we finished, we asked him about some of the things he was working on. If I remember right, he had an antique desk or similar furniture in progress. He showed us some of the unique original craftsmanship that went into it, discussing it with great respect for the original builder. He then went on to show us some of the toys he was making for the grandchildren. It was a simple interchange, but even in that short time, his desire to use his skills to delight his family was expressed with a tenderness of heart that revealed a great depth of feeling for a family he dearly loved. Our prayers are with your family!
