Oh Ric. You and I have a lot of history together. You came into my life 31 years ago. You taught me how to work hard and be accountable for my actions. You always supported me and gave me a lending ear whenever I needed one. I miss our conversations. I respected the hell out of you. You could be rough around the edges but you had a big heart and I’m so grateful I got to witness it! I appreciate everything you did for me and the love you always showed my children. You treated them like your own grandchildren. You welcomed me into your home, showed me how to work, and shared bits of your heart with me and mine. I will always remember your delicious thanksgiving dinners, fun Super Bowl parties, foot rubs, salsa, grape juice, Dutch oven cooking, camping trips, sitting outside with you listening to the creek or staring out at the Tetons and listening for birds (you’d try to match their whistles), the way your patients adored you, all the work you’d put into your yard, and the way you loved my mom. Thank you for being a big part of my life. I love you

Tara, I loved learning more about your dad and his younger life and interests. We hope you feel a lot of peace and joy today as you reflect on his life and influence on yours. Love Brenley and family

Soo sorry for Rick's passing. Such a good man!! Loved our competitive racquetball games; he tried to teach me how to fly fish--I failed. He could cook better then most guys, certainly better then me, and also had a hardier appetite. Loved hunting and fishing and the outdoors. Any sporting activities he could help with, especially with his children, he was ready-able-and present! Once reminiscing about his father, he stated he never knew anyone who could plant his cops in as straight a line or work as hard as dad. Many father's would cherish such respect from their children. About three decades ago, I had a foot problem and of course went to Ric. His office demeanor was much different than the typical guys outdoor demeanor. I was thoroughly impressed with his sincere interest in resolving my problem and the considerate and kind way he treated me. I later learned this was the same for all of his patients. To top it off, when I tried to pay, he firmly refused my money. His reason--our son just recently returned from his mission; and he would rather we help him instead. Generous, Kind, considerate, professional, adventurous, loved the outdoors, loved sports, enjoyed people, a good man and friend. Many wonderful joint family memories and the cousins having fun together.
