My dearest Smaggy (Alex), You will be deeply missed. It's hard to lose family that you hold so close. I've never thought in a million years that losing a cousin would hurt sooo much. You were one of the younger one which makes it even harder. It's is still unbelievable that you left so soon. I will always always love you miss you and remember you. You will never be forgotten. Love you always ♥. Love Valeena & Family ♥

Alex had so much love and kindness to give and he gave with such openness. I will remember his kindness to me and my family. He was my friend and he will be missed. I am so sorry for this great loss. So much love.

Dear Alex, I hope you knew how much you meant to so many people both in and outside of the family. Whether it was your humor, genuine kindness or loveable fun-going personality, everyone enjoyed your company. I'll always remember your passion for cooking, films, music, and road trips. You have been - and will always be - in my thoughts. Even simple things that you were synonymous with like the Sundance Film Festival or a Metallica song. We knew each other for 27 years. Saw one another grow up and experience many trials and tribulations of life. But regardless of what the outside circumstances were you would always be welcoming and full of love. I was proud of the road you paved for yourself. Always willing to branch out and be your own person no matter how tough the journey might be. Always appreciated your taking it easy demeanor and not stressing over the most irrelevant mundane things in life. To put it simply: You were one of a kind my brother. And although many hearts are breakingright now, rest assured your impact will be ever-lasting on many of us. We will always be family and I'll catch ya on later down the trail ■ Sincerely, Johnny Renshaw
