Jan married David Dwight Dillingham on August 25, 1965, in the Salt Lake City Temple. For their honeymoon they spent six weeks traveling throughout Europe. The memories from their honeymoon enchanted their children throughout their lives and encouraged them to have their own adventures. Together they raised their six children making their home first in California and then in Maryland. After David’s passing, Jan returned to Salt Lake City.

Janet was a lifelong learner, receiving her Bachelor’s degree in Political Science from the University of Utah, and later a Master’s degree in Audiology from the University of Maryland while raising her six kids. She was a faithful member of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, serving in various callings throughout her life. She loved being in the temple and served as a temple worker in both the Washington D.C. and Salt Lake City temples.
