Went through the Police Academy with Brad and knew before we finished our session that he was going to be a great peace officer and he was all of that and then some. Enjoyed interacting with him occasionally over the years. My sincere condolences to the entire family.

So sorry for your loss

Brad was a honorable man who made the world a better place by keeping the public safe and being a great father for his three sons. His impact will not be forgotten. Rest in peace.

- Alexander Swift

My condolences to the Adamson family. My best memory of your dad was he and Steve in a basketball game with the “ward kids”. Brad was blocking someone with the ball, and he yelled in his face to try too get him to give up the ball, didn’t work, but I laughed so hard.

Twins Bradley and Brian were neighbors and classmates from 6th through 12th grade, and made their presence felt in a number of fun-loving, never too serious ways, for example double-dating, switching clothes during the date, so the girls they were with never knew which one they were with. It bemused us to learn that after high school they also switched sides, from teen hell-raisers to deputy sheriffs, while one of their high school confreres became a judge. Not having seen them since graduation but knowing what it takes to be in law enforcement, I say they both have my admiration, and to the life sketch in the obituary, I can only affirm a firm Amen. Condolences to classmate Margo and joined-at-the-hip Brian, and brother. and symphony connoisseur Craig, and posterity. Bradley made the world a more just and vibrant place.

Reading your father's obituary really made me smile. Thank you for sharing him with us. Even though I never met Brad I feel like I know him now. What a wonderful family he raised and what a wonderful loving way to remember him! Thank you and God Bless

Your tribute glows with love and respect for Bradley, a man it took no less than this to begin to capture for posterity. I can see him through his son's eyes and only wonder how we're not all ever gonna make it through life with any blinker fluid left. We stand with you and the family in honoring his life, his lives, his service, and his legacy. Go in peace... and in good-hearted mischief, Sir!

It was a treat knowing Brad through our association at the Harrison Duck Club. I always enjoyed talking to Brad and hearing his stories about the duck club. I'll miss Brad. David Hinds
