Miss you back here at home Elder Fe'iloaki. I know that you have been called by Him to do his work, but losing you is still hard to accept, which is mean that you have gone from us now we will never see you again in the journey of our daily life. Life is hard when we are incomplete but trust in the Lord with all thin heart and lean not unto thy own understanding in all thy ways acknowledge him and he shall direct thy path. With the understanding from this we will all try accept the truth all come to face the reality. You may be gone from us, but your kindness will always remain with us which is so unforgettable. May you rest in his loving hand. Till that glories morning. You will forever be in my heart my dearest loving brother. Love you from, Manusiu 'o Vava'u Fe'iloaki.

The love of my life, the beat of my heart, the experience of being a first-time baby boy, and my family's strength. You have been a rock and a source of inspiration during this challenging time. I am so thankful for all the love and support you have given me. You have been a true blessing in my life. I don't know what I would have done without you. I am so proud of you, and I love you with all my heart. Thank you for being here for me. My life wouldn't be the same without you, my son. You are the rock of our little family. I imagine our lives together. And how you will help me with every dream we create, you sharing each other love and happiness. I will await your calls every Sunday on our PD and share all the news and scripture you learn in the mission field. Missing all those funny times, you always reminded me to pay my 1/10 and be Christlike. How you wanted to solve every problem that came your way. You wouldn't want to let any of that problem affect me, so you tried your best to solve it. My dear son, I am proud of the man you became and am so grateful that you are mine. I am thankful for your faith and courage. You inspire many, and I am blessed to have you in my life. I love you, son. You are not far away. You are here by my side. I know we can do this together till eternity.

- Your loving Mum
