To Ethan's family, I am so sorry for your loss. I was surprised I didn't know about this considering how many mutual friends we had. Ethan and I were not close, though, at one point in my life, he was probably the only person who I could trust. He had such a big heart and literally saved me from enduring some terrible things, on numerous occasions. He was the only person in the world who knew what was going on. He did the best he could to encourage me to get away from what I was dealing with. I am eternally grateful for Ethan and I pray he is having a wonderful time up there. (I don't think I ever got to say it enough, but thank you, Ethan. Bless your soul.)
