

Francine Elizabeth Wright

September 21, 1979 ~ February 18, 2024

What a special person she was! The world lost a straight up angel. I am so sad I will be out of town on this date of the funeral. ■ I will be honoring her life that day and remembering all of the fond memories I have.

I met Francine just after coming home from my mission, and I think at that pivotal time in life she influenced me to take a higher trajectory in life. She taught me about life, marriage/motherhood and pushing through challenges; also how to scrapbook and preserve the memories of life. I was thinking about her just this week as I digitized some scrapbooks the way she taught me. She was a remarkable woman, I feel blessed for having been counted as her friend on this earth.

It’s been a long time since I have seen Francine but what has always stood out to me and what I will always remember her for is how incredibly devoted a mother she was—an exceptional example of love and grace. I’m so truly and deeply sorry for this immense loss your family is experiencing. It’s not fair at all, but I know that Francine has left an imprint on everyone she touched in a way that will never fade. My love and thoughts are with your family at this difficult time. May you all find peace and glimmers of joy peaking through the clouds of your grief.

I worked with Francine at the orthodontic office and always looked up to her and admired her strength as I fought my own battle with cancer in addition to losing my mother to it. I’m deeply saddened to hear of her passing. My thoughts and prayers go out to her husband and children.
