

Gary E. Brown

May 10, 1930 ~ November 28, 2025

Gary was one of a kind. Always quick to tease with a joke or have something to say to bring the room to laughter. Some of my favorite childhood memories are being at your parents home. When Scott and I decided to get married your dad took Scott aside and told him he better be good to me or he would have a wrath of men to deal with haha. Scott shared that with me the other day when I told him of his passing. I was so sad to hear that his health had declined so fast but am happy now that I got to see him one last time a couple months ago. Although he didn't know me just being able to give him a hug meant the world to me. I won't be able to attend tomorrow but thought I would write to just say how special of a man your dad was and send much love to all of you. Julie & Scott

Dear cousins, I am so sorry to hear of Gary’s passing. I think we all thought he would be the brother to live to be 100! Take care of each other through this. I dread the day but know that death comes and is most certainly better than languishing. My heart is with you all.
