I was a missionary companion to Jerry in Nuremberg. We also were in the group that arrived in Germany together and attended Weber College at the same time. We were about the same height and build and some thought we were biological brothers. As it worked out, we were able to attend the Oberammergau Passion Play in 1960 with our "house Frau's" from Nuremberg. Jerry told me that I snored too much and that it kept him awake. I told him I didn't snore and went to bed. Later that night he recorded my snoring and played back to me at breakfast the next morning, proving me wrong! We had some great experiences together as missionaries, worked hard and had success. His spirituality was so humble and good and many of our contacts could read that in him. Jerry was a favorite companion - one I will always remember and be grateful for our time together. He was the one who at lunch time said, "we need to knock on just one more door"! As it turned out, that family joined to church. Had we not done that, we could have missed a great opportunity to bring them into the Gospel. Jerry was a "great man" in my book and I was so lucky that our paths crossed as they did. My love to all of you with his passing - you can be so lucky to have had such a great husband and father. I look forward to a reunion with him at a future time!

I have always remembered the name, Uncle Jerry Law. I hadn't heard it outside our family until I recently met Jerry's old friend. Dean Morrison. As the story was told, Linda was my little brother, Dean's primary teacher. My father, Larry, and his twin, Jerry, and Jerry once took a snowshoe hike into Camp Keisel (I'll post pictures to Jerry's FamilySearch profile.
