Darling Suzanne, From our earliest meeting back in Provo as students, we have admired and loved you as a soulmate, loving the same music, poetry, art, the beauties of nature and all the wonders of Creation, including our beautiful and, yes, at times challenging children. And Josh was a favorite among the Florence kids. Can't wait to see him whole and as able as his heart has long desired. Fondly, Giles and Annie

I knew Josh mostly in Jr High and High School. We were acquaintances. I was going through an old year book and saw his photo and a ton of memories flooded back into my head. When I first met Josh. When Josh went through his first experimental treatment to elongate one of his arms. And when we had swim class together and I was totally blown away at how great of a swimmer he was. I was saddened to learn that when I looked up Josh on Google, to see that he died. To his friends and family, I hope you take comfort in knowing that Josh had a very positive effect on people and I always admired his outlook. I think he and my brother may have known each other for a short period (my brother had cerebral palsy and went to East High for a year). It's great to look through Josh's old photos and see all of the things he loved. My condolences to all.
