

Michael Thomas Ossola

June 21, 1939 ~ August 26, 2023

My first introduction to Michael was through my husband as they were college friends. When Michael first met me he quipped, "Bart, are you robbing the cradle again?" Michael has been an inherited friend for me and what a great inheritance I have enjoyed because of him. Michael is witty, funny and very kind. When we left undergraduate school at the same time as Michael, he pulled our meager possessions in a U-haul trailer to California with his sporty black Ford because our Fiat was not up to the task. He greeted us at every gas and rest stop with a big smile on his face and conversation that made the trip more fun. When my husband graduated from earth life over two years ago, Michael immediately offered to help me with any house repairs I needed, helped me sort out financial issues and phoned consistently to see how I was doing. I had the privilege of having a lengthy conversation with him the 26th of August 2023. He was full of hope for the future and mentioned that if he survived his cancer it would be wonderful and if he didn't that would be okay also. I am going to miss my inherited dear friend very much indeed.
