

Nemo Joseph Tullius Jr. (“Butch”)

October 17, 1937 ~ February 8, 2026

It’s hard to find the words to express how broken my heart is. Butch has been in a fixture in my life since the day I was born. This summer I took up running and the highlight of so many of my evening runs was stopping to say hello to Butch and Roseanne as they sat out on their front bench. I will miss his kind smile and warm heart so much but I find peace in knowing he is reunited with Joe. Roseanne, Amber, Autumn and Tiffany, I love you all deeply and will keep you in my thoughts.

We’ll never forget the love and welcoming of this home and the father that built that foundation. His “gruff” manner quickly softened with a harmonious whistle that would draw anyone near. Butch was a father and loving advice giver to all who crossed the threshold of the front door. We love and hold all our memories dearly and will do our best to comfort those in our stay. Enjoy your reunion with Joe and those who have open arms stretching out for you, Butch.

Oh Roseanne, I am truly sorry for your loss of your sweet husband. He definitely was one of a kind (the good kind). Rely on the Lord’s grace and let Him carry you and your beautiful family through this time. Say his name everyday and tell his stories. Love and sympathy to you all. Kay and family

Nemo was a truly wonderful man, and I feel extremely fortunate to have known him through our shared love of woodworking. Over the years, our monthly interactions at Woodcraft became something I truly looked forward to. He was such a kind soul who will be deeply missed by everyone. Rest in Peace Nemo ■

Sincerest of condolences from my family to all of you in Butch’s inner and outer circles…family, loved ones and friends. He sounded like a wonderful gentleman, take heart in the memories and loving moments. God speed Butch, rest in peace and watch over your loved ones from above until you can embrace again…

- Robert Miller

It was my pleasure to serve your family and friends Sunday night. As I mentioned, the crowd and the love flowing through our halls all confirmed that your family is special. May you all feel peace knowing that the eternities are bright and loved ones await us all with open arms! May God bless and comfort you all.

- Jared Thorkelson (Larkin Mortuary)

Nemo was an amazing man who opened his heart and home to my family, no matter the circumstances. He will be missed and always remembered. My deepest condolences.

- Brandi (Pahl) Mancuso

I knew Nemo for years, he was The consummate gentleman, and his expertise and advice were excellent! He carried a solemn confidence, and what I understood to be hope! He is missed, I Send my deepest condolence.
