From the moment I say you! I knew there was something special with you. As I sat and watched you play by yourself. I said to my self you would be the best big brother to my son. So I chose you as the reason to allow my son to be adopted by your parent .. they love they showed you and the the patients was over so amazing . I never worried if he would be treated right . I seen the love they gave you and I was at ease.. thank you for being a big brother to my son .. I love you and you will be my new guardian angel.. watch over us all.. rest in love Zach

Our daughter Ammie brought the Stafford family and us together when she married Marc. From day one we were always and forever family. We love you and you will be in our thoughts and prayers.

I choked up at the CoL and couldn't say what I wanted. My home has been the gathering place for numerous children and having the privilege of having Zach then getting Nic were just more love. While my ears may never hear Zach holler momma and wrap me in a hug my heart will hear it daily. I will never forget Nics first time here watching one of our crazy romps through the house with the boys and I chasing each other around smacking each other and calling names. I had to tell him to join the game or get out of the way. He fell over and his cane went off scaring my dog all to hell, which got all of us laughing. These are the memories I have tucked in my heart forever. Losing them never crossed my mind but them going together couldn't have been more perfect. I can't imagine one without the other. I'm known as momma to almost 30 kids and these boys are the 2nd and 3rd I've lost. It never gets easier but they will always be my boys.
