I am a close friend of the family- The only stories I've heard of Chance have been of what a true light he was to the people he knew.

Oh no. This is such tough news. Losing a child is about the worst thing ever. A club no one wants to be in with an impossible price. He leaves a big hole that won't be filled until the next life. I remember how special Chance's arrival was. I have not seen prouder parents. I loved reading about how the love of his family became a foundation for how he lived his life. I love the hope for the next life that was shared. How blessed you were to have him. And how blessed he was to belong to you. Sending hugs and prayers of confort your way. May you ever feel his spirit near and recognize the signs he sends you.
